Janice Forsyth, presenter for BBC Radio Scotland's Movie Café, will be in conversation with

Simon Callow

6:00pm, Monday 23 November

Simon Callow has been gracing the big screen in a wide variety of roles since his film debut in 1984 as Schikaneder in Amadeus. But, it was as the character Reverend Mr. Beebe in A Room With a View (1985) and as Gareth in Four Weddings and a Funeral (1994) that he became known to wider audiences. In 2009, he starred as Pozzo in a

UK tour of Waiting for Godot with Sir Ian McKellan and Patrick Stewart. As well as his numerous successes on screen and on stage as an actor and director, Callow is also a prolific writer, including key texts on acting and two biographies of American film legend Orson Welles.

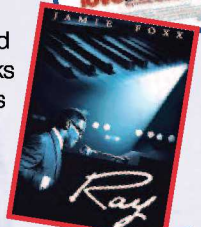

Craig Armstrong

6:00pm, Wednesday 2 December

Glasgow born, Craig Armstrong has become one of the world's most sought-after and respected composers and arrangers for film. His expressive and moving soundtracks have been the keystone to such films as Baz Luhrmann's Romeo + Juliet (1996) and Moulin Rouge (2001) (which won him a Golden Globe for Best Original Score), Love Actually (2003), Ray (2004) (for which he won a Grammy Award), World Trade Center (2006), Elizabeth: The Golden Age (2007), and Marvel's The Incredible Hulk (2008).

Actually (2003), Ray (2004) (for which he won a Grammy Award), World Trade Center (2006), Elizabeth: The Golden Age (2007), and Marvel's The Incredible Hulk (2008).

All events take place in King's College Conference Centre, King's College, Old Aberdeen, and are followed by a reception hosted by Scottish Screen.
