NTF 2018 Updated slides

2 MAR

I am pleased to say we had a very successful webinar today on NTF 2018 led by Peter Hartley, Helen May and me, which replaced the planned session at Edinburgh Napier University, which was closed today with the blizzards.

A couple of issues cropped up both in the planning of it and during the webinar, which required some clarification by Helen May, and Peter Hartley also provided a very useful mindmap, so this version of the slides is the the updated one, with three new slides inserted after Peter's mindmap. We hope you find these useful. .ANTF-presentation-w3.pptx \(182 downloads\)

HEA have made a recording of the webinar, a link to which is here: <https://yousee.eu/external-player/1070/bb2f3ecf208ba15b234468cff6bfa6bb/styled?iti-scope=d2l-resource-syncmeeting-list>

NB These slides are based on the 2018 rules.
My best guess is that the 2019 scheme will not make many significant changes but do check the 2019 regulations when they are issued.

Key features of CATE

- Cannot find guidelines at AdvanceHE – 2018 guidance available from other sources.
E.g. https://www.sheffield.ac.uk/polopoly_fs/1.800350!/file/CATE_guidance_2018.pdf
- 2 criteria
 - ‘excellence in the team’s collaborative approach’
 - ‘excellence in the impact of collaborative working’
- Process and constraints similar to NTF (e.g. formatting)
- Award for dissemination.
- Timetable for 2019 to be announced.

Exercise for 'supporters'.

Discuss!

- How does your present development/reward system re teaching excellence relate to the NTFS criteria and process?
- How can you improve alignment?
- What do you intend to do re NTFS 2019?
- What are your long-term plans/aspirations re NTFS?

Exercise 1

for prospective applicants

- What is 'good evidence' of impact against each of the NTFS criteria?
- How can/could you collect such evidence?

Exercise 2

for prospective applicants

- What is your 'profile statement' which summarises your role and overall claim?
 - Worth having a look at the profile statements on the AdvanceHE website (some examples much more informative than others)
<https://www.heacademy.ac.uk/individuals/national-teaching-fellowship-scheme/NTF/Directory>
- To support this profile, for each criterion, can you list:
 - Specific claims.
 - Evidence you have/need to support those claims.

- Report by researchers from Sheffield Hallam University. The summary concludes that “whilst respondents highlight many limitations in the way the scheme is operated/used by institutions and the sector as a whole, the scheme is generally perceived as valuable by successful applicants and by institutions as a way of ‘benchmarking’ for innovation and teaching excellence, across the sector.”
