

Translating research into commercial opportunities - 15 March 2019

Have you ever considered developing your science into a business opportunity?

Students and staff with an interest in commercialisation of life sciences are invited to attend a workshop exploring how one begins to undertake the journey from academic lab to the commercial world. Dr Fiona Rudkin will provide an inspiring example of her own on-going entrepreneurial journey and attendees will be able to pitch their nascent ideas and receive guidance from experts from the University of Aberdeen, ONE and BioCity. Event will take place from 12:30 - 13:30 in the Level 5 Conference Room at IMS.