

Aberdeen City Election.—Mr Hadden, the Tory candidate, has given in, and left the field to the independent candidate, Mr Bannerman. ^{now} He is right, and the only wonder is, that he should have persevered so long. But this is an instance of the practices of the Tories; with defeat staring them in the face, it is accounted a fine thing to avenge themselves as much as possible on the purses and patience of their opponents. The day of nomination is Tuesday the 18th, when Mr Bannerman will be elected as a matter of course. In the choice of a representative the people of Aberdeen have amply vindicated their previous zeal in the cause of reform. / 532
